THE STORY

ACT I

THE FRACTURE

Makenna & Kelvin — married 14 years, barely speaking. An unexpected invitation to Willow Creek, an elite off-grid retreat deep in the forest. They go, desperate for anything but the silence.

ACT II

THE TRAP

Breakthroughs start forming. Trust trickles back. Then, three masked men storm the retreat. One of the guests is hiding something worth killing for. Paranoia spreads. Alliances fracture. Secrets surface.

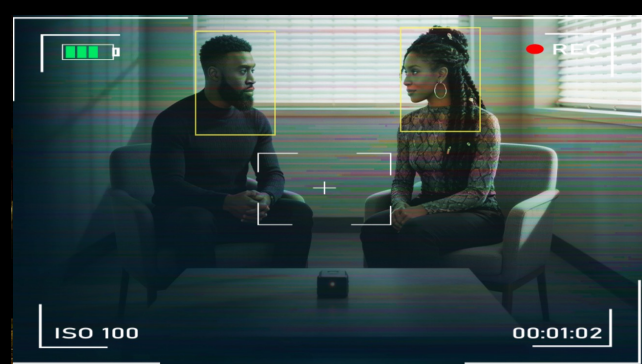

ACT III

THE TRUTH

Survival forces Makenna and Kelvin to confront every truth they've buried. When they finally escape — they discover the real danger was never inside the house. It was the truth waiting at the end.

THE CHARACTERS

MAKENNA DUMAS

THE WIFE

*Emotionally guarded.
Intelligent.
Wounded but not weak.*

Has spent her life equating strength with silence. Skeptical, resistant, slow to trust. But beneath her armor is a deeply feeling woman afraid of being seen as weak — carrying a secret that's become too heavy to bear alone.

ARC: Transforms from emotionally guarded and suspicious into a woman willing to fight for herself, her husband, and their survival.

KELVIN DUMAS

THE HUSBAND

*Earnest. Patient.
A man trying to hold it together, quietly failing.*

Once knew how to be present. Got lost in survival mode. He loves Makenna deeply but doesn't know how to reach her. His biggest challenge: confronting how his own emotional absence helped push her away.

ARC: Realizes fixing things isn't the same as being there.

DR. HAROLD MAYO

THE THERAPIST

*Magnetic. Methodical.
Nothing about him
is an accident.*

Runs Willow Creek with surgical precision from behind the scenes. He seems to see everything — every fracture, every fear. But as the retreat unravels, the question becomes: what does he really want from these couples?

ARC: The retreat's most dangerous element may be him.
